How Politics have Shaped the Funding, Curriculum and Student Outcomes in Our Public Schools

Barrera and Remer will preview a proposed course for UCSD that will explore how the dynamics of California politics and the competing agendas of various interest groups have come to shape the structure, funding and policies of one of our most vital public institutions: our K-12 school system. They ask, "What were the political forces at play in the LA teachers strike? How do these forces play out in San Diego and elsewhere in California and where do we go from here?"
